A High Quality of life is rooted in what we share as individuals and as communities.

As members of the rural community of Mora, New Mexico, we offer an alternative model of service to people with disabilities.

Person centered is more than an approach; it is a commitment to, and belief in human dignity.

Surrounded by forest, this tranquil valley has all of the elements and resources of a ranch complex.

We tailor the specifics of our programs to each individual served. Building relationships teaches us about each person’s perspective; their communication and learning styles, their preferences and values.

Celebrating the Individual while recognizing the connections of participants, co-workers, Family, friends and community members.
